Threat case goes to court

Online investigation continues

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

A 12-year-old and 13-year-old from Didsbury have been charged in connection with threats made against Westglen Middle School last week made their first appearance in court yesterday to answer to the charges.

The youths, who cannot be identified due to being under the age of 18, were released by police under special conditions less than 24 hours after their March 10 arrest and remain in the community.

One of the boys is charged with possession of a restricted weapon, carrying a concealed weapon, break and enter, and two counts of theft.

The other boy is charged with uttering threats, possession of a restricted weapon, carrying a concealed weapon and break and enter.

Reading of the charges was waived for both accused in court yesterday. Neither boy spoke during their brief appearance. Judge Peter Barley ordered them to get legal aid and to appear for plea back in Didsbury Provincial Court April 14.

Didsbury RCMP are continuing their investigation.

RCMP Sgt. Kevin O'Dwyer said the initial complaint was brought to the Didsbury RCMP detachment when a parent overheard his son talking to someone over the phone regarding what was perceived as a threat against Westglen Middle School, which has students from Grades 5 to 8.

A handgun was seized in the investigation, but police believe it was never brought to Westglen school grounds.

Police believe it was important to make contact with school officials during the initial stages of the investigation, said against the school, we wanted to prepare them in the event that we couldn't get ahold of these individuals. I wanted to give them enough time to put their emergency plans into play. It was a good test of our communications and I think it went very well," he said.

"As the investigation continued and the youths had been located and arrested the risk of a threat had been considerably reduced."

O'Dwyer says, police believe the threats in question were never made to a student at Westglen School.

As the investigation progressed, police were made aware of potentially useful material on a website allegedly utilized by the youths.

"In the early stages of the investigation the website became known to us and became known as a location for either threats being portrayed or that pictures (posted) were threatening in nature and disconcerting in nature."

Tech crime experts froze the website, allowing police to preserve any materials that may be valuable in their probe.

"This allows us to seize and obtain IP addresses, blogs, e-mails, and any activity associated with that site," he said, adding that three other websites are presently being investigated.

"We still have a lot of work left to do."

Police have been in contact with principal of Westglen School, Jeff Thompson, along with other staff, and students on a daily basis.

"This is a really unfortunate situation, and I think it was dealt with in a very professional manner by the police," he said.

"It's a huge thing, it's frightening. It's a scary thing to have to consider. People are highly emotional and highly charged over this. I believe our students, staff, and community members know what a great place this is."

Thompson says he has heard questions and concerns from parents since the arrests last week.

"There has been a lot of anxiety, a lot of nervousness. People are dealing with it well but there is still that anxiety."

"Parents are very concerned. They want to make sure their children are safe, and I understand that. I want them to know that we are doing everything we can to keep them safe."

Family wellness workers have been available to staff, students, and parents since last Monday.

"We have been offering support to students that have needed to talk to somebody as things came out and how they were thinking or feeling regarding their safety," said family-school wellness worker Christy deGreeff.

Last Wednesday, the other town family wellness worker and one responsible for the schools in Carstairs made themselves available.

"My number one priority has always been, and will always be the safety of our children," says Thompson.

"We are a great community. I'm very proud of this community. We have got a lot of wonderful children here and we have a building full of caring adults."

Didsbury Review

Grant and Lorraine McDonald, and George and Louise McDonald have submitted a joint application appealing the participation of their land in the Town of Didsbury's annexation process.

The landowners, referring to property on the south part of sw24-31-2-5th, and se24-31-2-w5th respectively, made a Power Point presentation during a Municipal Government Board (MGB) hearing March 5.

Their presentation featured points on current land utilization, traffic flow, regulations, commercial industrial land, among others.

"Seven years ago in an attempt to move away from industrial development we built a new home as far away as possible," stated the presentation. "When annexed into town the taxes will increase and its value will diminish in an industrial park. With children at home ages 6, 8, and 10 we were hoping to get another 15 years before being annexed. The house is approximately 5500 square feet and we have a 50 X 20 machine shed. To replace our family farm home at another location would cost over $1,000,000."

While the facts in their presentation were believed to be true, the appeal applicants suggested they be checked for accuracy.

The town of Didsbury presented the process it went through involving negotiations with Mountain View County and county residents involved.

The Town stated the property in question is a necessary participant in the annexation as it plans an industrial park.

"We have to look at infrastructure for that whole area," said Mayor Brian Wittal. "If that piece isn't included, we really can't do that."

Wittal says long-term planning cannot be accomplished for land that isn't their property.

If the MGB decides in favour of the appeal, Wittal says the town will need to explore other avenues to produce the servicing necessary for the industrial park.

County representatives also spoke in support of the town's overall annexation proposal.

"It's a difficult process for us because it's not something that any of us have gone through," commented Wittal following the hearing.

"It delays the whole process but it is necessary to ensure that everyone has their say."

Following the presentations, MGB members asked questions to all parties involved, for the purpose of clarification. They are now expected to take the information gathered from the hearing to formulate a recommendation to be presented to the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

The minister will then make a decision on the recommendation prior to it going before cabinet for approval.

"Compassionate, thoughtful service."

Vandals strike town church

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

Rev. Nancy Nourse of the Didsbury United Church described feelings of disappointment following an incident of vandalism March 1.

Multiple marks of graffiti, including an upside-down crucifix, commonly recognized for representing anti-Christianity, covered the building.

"It's disrespectful," said Nourse. "But at the same time, we have to think about why these things are happening, and have to have concern for these people. Is it out of anger? Is it out of boredom? It is out of, what's going on in their life and they are retaliating that way? They don't know how else to express themselves?"

Pastor said three community seniors spent most of the day cleaning the mess.

"For me, that's the frustrating part," she said. "Whoever does it thinks it's just a building or just an institution, but when it takes volunteers, who tend to be seniors, it tends to be a lot of work."

It affects a lot of people, not just the building."

Nourse said most of the damage was done to windows on the building.

"In a way, that was a relief, which made it easier to get off," she said.

A fence and minivan belonging to a neighbour of the church was also marked with spray paint the same morning.

An investigation by Didsbury RCMP is ongoing.

The Didsbury United Church was found covered in graffiti earlier this month. Rev. Nancy Nourse called the incident disrespectful.

Maybe I missed the memo

KRISTIN BENOIT
Didsbury Review

As I walked my block-and-a-half commute through town this morning, I took a moment to savour the calmness of the street.

No rush hour to speak of. Not a traffic jam in sight. No constant mass of honking, angry vehicles, their caffeine-riddled drivers with a "here we go again" state of mind.

It was absolute heaven.

Maybe the 'traffic' is bad here - although not from what I can see.

If it is, try coming to the big, bad city of Calgary, where the roads are absolutely heinous.

Or are all big cities like that, or worse, the entire province?

People move to Calgary from all over the country each year in search of expansive wealth and better job opportunities (or so the story goes).

And along the way they find the distinct breed of Calgary drivers - or are they everywhere?

They disregard the use of signal lights, are oblivious to the rules of a four-way stop, and can't be bothered to distinguish the difference between stop, merge, or yield, not to mention they tailgate like there's no tomorrow.

And to top it all off, they're flipping the bird left and right, yelling obscenities out the window, and slamming on the brakes just to annoy the driver behind them.

Any of this sound familiar to the rest of the province?

Because maybe it's not just the cities. Move a few miles north to the infamous Highway 2 and you'll understand what I'm saying - just how many people are killed on that highway every year?

When did this happen? Have Albertans been appalling on the road since horse and buggy days?

Or is it the fast-paced, monetary-driven pressure building up in this province that's exploding in the form of a million little angry, ignorant drivers?

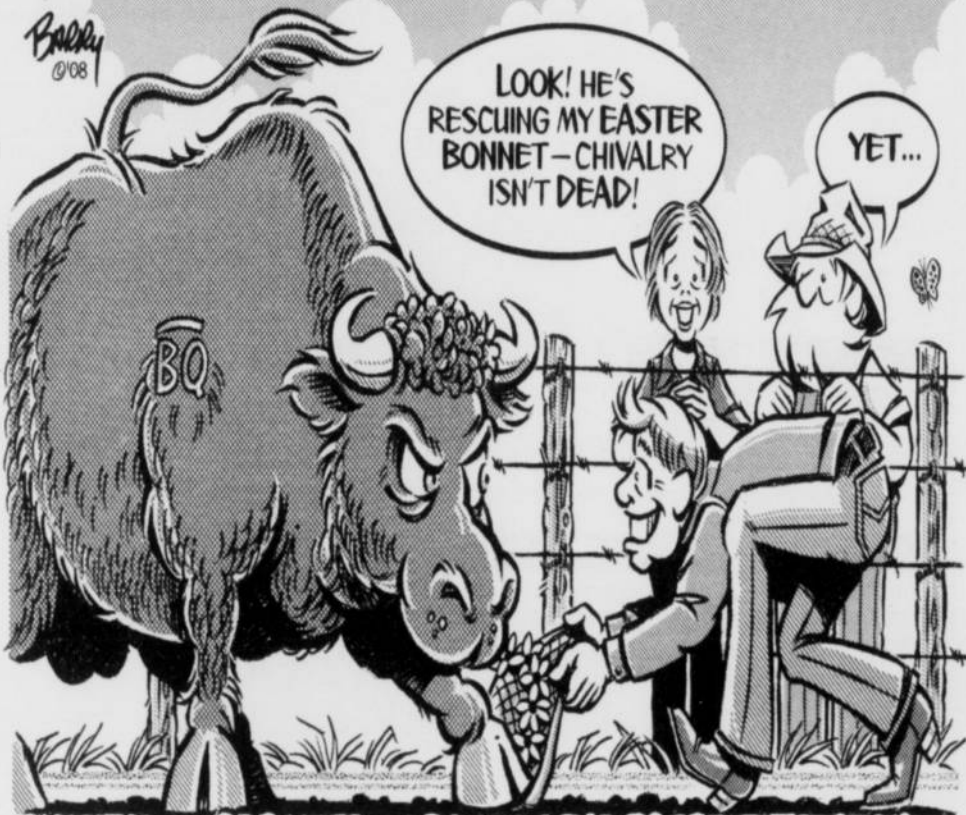

I'd like to know whatever happened to common courtesy.

The everyday activity of driving seems to have become a do-or-die situation.

Or did I miss the memo that says if you're not willing to drive recklessly, not to mention risk your life and others', then don't get behind the wheel at all?

In a recent complaint about Alberta drivers my uncle told me that he drives as though everyone is trying to kill him.

At the time I thought this was paranoid and slightly ridiculous, but I've come to realize, sadly, that it's true.

DAN SINGLETON
Didsbury Review

The newly re-elected provincial Conservative government will have its hands full with a myriad of pressing issues over the next four or five years.

Health care, education, the economy, affordable housing and many other things will certainly be keeping government MLAs hopping.

And as one of the province's biggest economic engines - producing more than one million barrels of oil a day - the oil sands industry in northeast Alberta also promises to be the focus of much public attention over the coming months.

In particular, the impacts of the vast oil sands extraction industry on the environment and the health of residents living nearby is likely to remain a hot-button issue, both in the surrounding communities and across the province.

A number of oil and gas companies recently called on the province to rein in production for the sake of environmental protection. Yet with the demand for ever more oil sands production coming from around the world, the provincial government finds itself facing some tough choices.

And now - in a scene very reminiscent of an earlier era when Edmonton and Ottawa went toe-to-toe on the issue of resource development - the federal Liberals have jumped into the fray, making a major push to turn Alberta's oil sands into a national political issue.

"The government must realize that unrestrained, unlimited expansion of the tar sands will have environmental consequences," said Liberal environment critic David McGuinty. "We need to ensure that as we expand the oil industry we take the time to properly protect the environment, the health of Albertans, and the health of all Canadians."

The oil sands are causing serious health concerns to aboriginals living in communities in northeastern Alberta, he said.

"With hundreds of thousands of cubic metres of waste from the tar sands leaking into the Athabasca River each year, it is no wonder that those living downstream are raising the alarm bells," he said.

The aboriginal leaders of the affected communities say the oil sands have led to dramatic increases in the incidence of lupus, asthma, and rare forms of cancer on their reserves.

If those aboriginal leaders are right, then the Stelmach government shouldn't need any prompting, from the federal Liberals or anyone else, to take prompt action to address those problems.

If, however, the Stelmach Tories think they can ignore the environmental impacts of oil sands development with a claim that the money generated there helps all Albertans, then they should also expect to have a very big national fight on their hands in the coming days.

The bottom line is Alberta's oil sands must be developed and operated in an environmentally friendly fashion.

Council rejects high-density rezone

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

A large gathering of Didsbury residents were present and vocal in their disapproval of a proposal that would amend the present land use bylaw for a portion of 18 St. to be rezoned from residential to high density.

The application was put forth by a developer who submitted a plan for a four-storey, 48-unit apartment complex in three lots on that street.

"This building will produce excessive noise and traffic," stated a letter submitted by Kelly and Jennifer Falk, which was read by Town of Didsbury development officer Robert Wigg during the public hearing.

"With an increase of population, comes an increase in vandalism, which we do not accept or want...property prices will drop out through the bottom and complaints about the noise pollution and traffic will fill the town office. If the town needs this apartment complex, build it in another location."

Council reviewed and discussed comments from residents following the public hearing in addition to points made in letters submitted to the town office, when they decided to not grant second reading to the application and reject the proposal for three high-density lots on 18 St.

However, another application to rezone from residential to high-density was discussed in a separate public hearing and given second and third reading.

Developers hoping to bring a complex that would feature 24 residential units for seniors were granted approval on their rezoning application for 1717 14 Street in town.

Charles Brinton who submitted a letter, but wished to expand with comment at the meeting, spoke about property value.

"Really, if we have a nice-looking project like this, even though there are 24 units there - I would rather have something like this right beside me looking like this. We support the project and think it is necessary and need for the town."

But along with those who voiced objections to the project, traffic is a concern, he said.

"I think that is something that has to be dealt with."

Ramblers minute

Midgets to face Texans in season finale

Since the Didsbury Midget's last report, the team has played a provincial playoff round, attended a tournament in Sparwood, had seven league games remaining with playoffs in our sights, had a tournament to attend in Three Hills and a game to play against a Houston, Texas, midget hockey team.

We can now report that the midgets have accomplished all of this and will end their season having played 40 games and having scored 205 goals. Provincial playdowns proved probably to be one of the most disappointing parts of the season, losing the best of two, total point, to Kneehill by a total score of 10-8. Injuries and absences played a role in the loss, but, hey, that's midget hockey. Traveling to the tournament in Sparwood proved to be one of the season highlights and the team found themselves in one of the snowiest weekends of their season, setting the tone of a great winter weekend for hockey. The team ended up winning the B side consolation game by a score of 4-3 against a very aggressive Lethbridge team, after losing their first game 6-3 to a fast Medicine Hat team and their second to the Airdrie Tier 1 team 6-5.

Upon their return, the team was ready for the task of finishing their seven league games to earn a playoff spot. Sitting in fourth, the team scored and defended their way through the seven games, winning six of the seven and ending up second in the league standings. At the completion of league play, the team ended 12-6-0 and two Didsbury players, Randy Hunter and Kasey Eichhorst, were sitting second and third, respectively, in overall league scoring. In net, the team had terrific goaltending by Tyler Lachucik and Calvin Sewart, who, in the last six games, only gave up 11 goals. Finishing second meant that Didsbury would face off against Drumheller in their first round of playoffs. In the best of three games with Drumheller, a regulation loss of 5-2 and an OT loss of 5-4 saw Didsbury's playoffs hopes over, a disappointing end to a great league season. A tournament in Three Hills would get us back on the horse, facing teams from the Edge (Calgary), Edson and Hinton. Didsbury were C Final winners, losing to the Edge 3-2 (out-shooting them 36-18), tying a very strong Edson team 4-4 and then winning the C final 20-0 (really) against Edson.

The defensive team of Colbey Dietrich, Colby Wenckowski, Zac McCargar, Blake Shields, Braydon Snyder (sidelined with a season-ending injury) and Mac Southgate, goaltenders Lachucik and Sewart, and the offense of Eichhorst, Devon Gillies, Jesse Gole, Will Hadway, Hunter, Alex Hutcheon, Cody Krebs, AJ McCoy and Branton Olfert are now preparing for their second international hockey game of the season, a game that is to be their season finale. The Houston (Texas) Jr Aeros will be in Didsbury March 22 for a 1 p.m. game. The Aeros play in a North Texas hockey league based in Dallas. They are first in their league with a record of 17-3-1.

We have him in our hearts.

SHANTZ, EMERSON ROSS 1909 - 2008

Mr. Emerson Ross Shantz of Red Deer, AB passed away on March 3, 2008 at the Red Deer Regional Hospital Centre at 98 years of age. Born at home in Didsbury, AB July 26, 1909, Emerson considered Didsbury his true home and the Evangelical Missionary Church his church home. He fell in love with Pearl Jackson of Galahad, a fellow student at Mountain View Bible School, and they married in 1935. Emerson was a teacher by profession and a farmer by vocation. After teaching in various communities, he purchased his parents' farm in 1950 and settled there with his family. In 1975 he retired from 39 years of teaching and administration, the last 24 years at the Carstairs School. Many former students remember him as their high school math or social studies teacher. Following retirement, Emerson and Pearl enjoyed extensive travelling and built friendships around the world. He continued farming until his 85th year and was Pearl's devoted caregiver during her last years. In 1998 he moved to the new Victoria Park Retirement Residence in Red Deer, where he was near three of his children, made many new friends and became part of the CrossRoads Evangelical Missionary Church family. He remained active and well until entering hospital for facial surgery and died six weeks later from post-operative complications. Emerson was predeceased by his wife Pearl in 1997, after 62 years of marriage, son Ronald in 1940, and son-in-law Barry Tunbridge in 2006. He was also predeceased by his parents Melancthon and Samantha Shantz, brother Clarence, and sisters Alda Brado and Marie From. Emerson's five surviving children are Shirley Shantz of Red Deer, Carol (Eldon) Neufeld of Red Deer County, Bryan (Hazel) Shantz of Sylvan Lake, Glenda Tunbridge of Edmonton and Lois (Jack) Giron of Ames, Iowa. He is also survived by seven grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren, sister Ruth Kasher of North Vancouver, sister-in-law Ruby Lyons of Saskatoon, nieces, nephews, cousins and many friends. Emerson's children invite family and friends to join them in a Memorial Service at CrossRoads Church, 38105, Range Rd 275 (on 32 St. - Red Deer - west of highway 2), Red Deer County, at 11 a.m. on Saturday, March 22, 2008. Memorial donations in Emerson's honour may be directed to Missions at "EMCC World Partners", Evangelical Missionary Church of Canada, 130 Fergus Ave. Kitchener, ON N2A 4N2, or to the charity of your choice. Arrangements entrusted to Mountain View Funeral Chapels, 5226 - 46 Street, Olds, Alberta (403) 556-3223. Proudly serving our community for over 45 years.

We never knew what kind of community we are part of until this tragedy struck us. The support, kindness, sympathy has been overwhelming and we are exceedingly grateful. We did not know our daughter, Heather, was having such an incredible impact all on her own outside of her family. All of you who knew her as her own person have given us comfort. Time heals all, though not enough time has gone by for us to be able to move on, our house seems empty. Our souls hurt. She was too young but still contributed so much to this world. Thank you to each and every one of you who have sent flowers, cards, food, phone calls, words of sympathy. Also thank you to those who contributed to the Heather McDonald Scholarship Fund at the Mountain View Credit Unions. Without these gestures we would be drowning in grief. As it is we can begin to reflect on Heather's life and her impact on so many of you.
Thank you.
Robert, Pat, Lita, Erika

Thank You

A big thanks to every one of you who so graciously took time to visit my wife, Mina, while sick in the hospital; and encourage her in her struggle for life. She appreciated it so much. A big thanks also for your words of comfort given to me and my family at her memorial service. Thanks for the memorial gifts given, as well.
May God bless you.
